Using Microsoft Windows Rights Management Services to Comply with Government

Regulations

Courtesy of Microsoft

Organizations across industries and geographic boundaries are challenged to find the most effective means to meet government regulations that direct the archival of corporate documents and protection of personal information. Specifically, organizations in government, financial services (including the credit bureau industry), healthcare, life sciences, and education must comply with regulations targeted directly at how they control sensitive information. In addition, state and international laws carry their own impact as to how companies must safeguard information.

Question: I keep hearing about “Microsoft Dynamics.” What is it and what’s happening with Microsoft Business Solutions?

Answer: Microsoft has introduced Microsoft Dynamics as the product brand for its financial management, supply chain management, and customer relationship management (CRM) solutions. The leading business applications formerly titled Microsoft Business Solutions have been renamed under this brand. These changes reflect the direction Microsoft is taking with business technology: an approach that centers on how people work and on process-centric design. Microsoft chose "Dynamics" because customers indicated that they found the name meaningful as they pursue their objectives under constantly-shifting market, technology, and business conditions.

Simplified solution names

The latest names for Microsoft products that may already be at work in your business as Microsoft Business Solutions include:

- Microsoft Dynamics AX replaces Microsoft Axapta
- Microsoft Dynamics GP replaces Microsoft Great Plains
- Microsoft Dynamics NAV replaces Microsoft Navision
- Microsoft Dynamics SL replaces Microsoft Solomon
- Microsoft Dynamics CRM replaces Microsoft CRM
